MoGo has launched a new mouse called the Mogo Mouse X54 that connects to the computer system via Bluetooth.

The real feature of the X54 is not the Bluetooth but its dual functionality. With a regular mouse function the X54 can also turn into a multimedia remote. Just by flipping the switch located at the bottom, users can change the mode from mouse to remote or vice-versa.

When the device is in the mouse mode, it has right, left and center buttons, a scroll pad and a back button. When it is into the multimedia mode, same buttons control music and video playback. The remote functions include moving the tracks forward and back, volume, a play/pause toggle and mute.

There are two types of mouse available in X54 model, namely the X54 for media control and X54 Pro, which has a Presenter Mode to control presentations instead of multimedia mode. The Presenter Mode mouse has a built-in laser pointer too.

The X54 for media control and X54 Pro will be available from August $79.99 (approx. Rs. 3,230).
